

Having distinguished itself yet again, Yüksel is now among the top ten companies with its Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP), which was carried out as part of its sustainability efforts.

Having voluntarily measured its carbon foot print since 2010, Yüksel reported an impressive 23.74% decrease in its carbon footprint from 2012 to 2013. Yüksel is among about 2,000 companies globally and 41 companies based in Turkey that take part in the CDP.

This year, Yüksel increased its transparency score to 87 and its performance grade to category C in the CDP rankings, pushing its way into the top ten. Yüksel aims to continue its efforts to decrease carbon emissions and soon rank among the performance leaders.
